Coming to Your Bible

A recent article in Christianity Today is headlined: “Pop Francis: Why Everyone Loves the Pope.” It lauds Francis’ “unscripted” style “committed to breaking down the often-bitter rivalry between evangelicals and Catholics.” It mentions his recent apology to Italian Evangelicals for the Catholic religion’s participation in persecution of Pentecostals prior to World War II.

Note this statement from the article: “At the Second Vatican Council, the Catholic Church adopted a much more biblical approach, transforming its worship and fundamentally changing its relation to modern secular culture.”

How does a new PR campaign and an updated system of rituals make it more biblical? To be more biblical, purgatory would have to go, along with wor-

Philippine Public Schools Wide Open to Gospel Tracts

Reports are coming in from many foreign fields how gospel tracts are used to saturate communities resulting in new congregations, strengthened churches and fired up people. While it is getting more difficult to get tracts into some countries of the world, the Philippines remains wide open.

As of this writing, a 300,000-tract shipment to the Philippines is being boxed. The shipment will be divided up among dozens of local churches to saturate their communities with the Gospel.

Missionaries Mike and Luisa Carey report great success in their outreach to the

It's Not a Conspiracy Theory —It's a Fact!

Students of biblical prophecy have long identified an end-time one-world government. Developments in the last hundred years have silenced those who disbelieved it. Various detailed plans for its accomplishment have surfaced over the years and current events have played out closely according to some of the plans.

One such revelation involves a Dr. Richard Day, late professor of pediatrics at Mount Sinai School of Medicine, and a former director of Planned Parenthood, who spoke of the plans of "The Order" to a group of pediatricians in 1969. Dr. Lawrence Dunegan was in the audience and prepared an audio tape from his notes in the conference.

Looking back, the accuracy of the plan to recent developments is striking. Predictions included making abortion normal (spoken before Roe v Wade), sex education down to the youngest kids, encouraging homosexuality, limiting access to affordable health care and bringing down American pre-eminence in industry. Another objective was to destroy the normal family structure.

However, one of the most interesting parts of the plan dealt with Christians and the Bible: "The old religions will have to go, especially Christianity... Then a new religion can be accepted for use all over the world. It will incorporate something from all of the old ones to make it more easy for people to accept, and feel at home. Most people won't be too concerned with religion. They will realize that they don't need it.

"In order to do this, the Bible will be changed. It will be rewritten to fit the new religion. Gradually, key words will be replaced with new words having various shades of meaning. Then the meaning attached to the new word can be close to the old word and as time goes on, other shades of meaning of that word can be emphasized.

And then gradually that word replaced with another word."

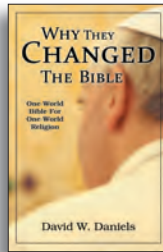

Dunegan explained, "... the idea is that everything in Scripture need not be rewritten, just key words replaced by other words. The variability in meaning attached to any word can be used as a tool to change the entire meaning of Scripture, and therefore make it acceptable to this new religion."

A classic example of this subtle change is the places in the New Testament where the word "saved" is changed to "being saved." (See Luke 13:23, Acts 2:47, 1 Cor. 1:18, and 2 Cor. 2:15.) Over one billion Catholics are taught that to claim you are "saved" is the sin of presumption. You are "being saved" and "on the road to salvation" through regular attendance at a re-sacrifice of Christ (Mass), confession of sins to a man who "absolves" them, belief in a wafer-god and worship of a virgin (Mary) goddess.

Do you see how this change shifts the meaning to fit the salvation-by-works heresy of Roman Catholicism? David W. Daniels details in his book, Why They Changed the Bible, how the modern Bibles are a product of over a century of effort to subtly bend the text toward a one-world Bible for a one-world religion. When Bible societies were first established in the early 1800s, ungodly society members succeeded

No Sowing—No Harvest

Jesus used the parable of the sower to show the various ways the word of God is received. Sowing the seed was necessary before anything would grow, whether withered plants from shallow ground or healthy fruit from good ground.

Sowing was essential to any kind of harvest. So it is with gospel tracts: no sowing, no reaping. In the parable, much of the seed went to waste, but it still was worth the effort of doing the sowing to get a harvest from the good ground.

Some in the modern church have scorned soul winners who use tracts and street signs for appearing to relish it when sinners go to hell. We must be very careful of this attitude. True, Jesus was very pointed in His discussions with the scribes and Pharisees because of their hypocrisy and corrupt leadership. But, when he turned to the crowds following him, He groaned with compassion for them, who were lost without true spiritual shepherds.

When we pass a tract, if it is to a “Christian,” it should be a challenge to a purer walk with Christ. If it is to an unbeliever, they come in two kinds: stony ground where the seed will not prosper and good ground where the Holy Spirit can nurture the seed into fruitful commitment to Christ.

If someone chooses to tear up the tract and put it in the trash, someday he may complain to Jesus on judgment day: “But... I didn’t know!” And Christ will remind him of the gospel tract that went into the trash. At that point, he can only hang his head without excuse.

If the unbeliever’s heart is touched, and he responds to the gospel, then the seed has fallen on good ground. Although we who plant tracts do not often see the fruit, the thousands of testimonies that have come to Chick Publications show that there are eternal results. Two striking stories come to mind:

One Chick tract “seed” was planted in a remote Alaskan wilderness.

A distraught

young man stood on a cliff overlooking a wild river, determined to jump to his death. However, a flash of color in the dust at his feet caught his eye. He picked it up and discovered it was a Chick tract. The message forever changed his plans and several years later he called the Chick office to relate his testimony and that he now is a pastor.

Another man confessed that he had stolen a copy of Holy Joe from his attorney’s waiting room but did not read it right away. As a flight instructor, he later read the tract while waiting for his plane to be serviced to take his last flight. But the message changed his plan which was to take the plane to an adequate altitude, nose it over and plant it, full speed into the middle of the runway. Instead, he submitted his shattered life to Jesus, went back and paid the attorney for the tract and led a fellow instructor to the Lord with it.

So, when someone tells you that tracts don’t work, remind them that the Great Commission requires that the gospel be spread to everyone: believers, scornful unbelievers and responsive unbelievers. The Holy Spirit can then nurture the planted gospel depending on the softness of the hearts. We have seen letters from people who tore up the first dozen tracts they got, but one day, their heart was softened enough that the message could take root and they responded in faith.

But seed left in the warehouse cannot take root anywhere. Granted, some will be lost but there is always some good ground out there. However, without the seed, no life will grow. Proverbs talks about the farmer who gets no harvest because he was too lazy to work his field.

Will we “plant” enough gospel to get any harvest of Christ’s approval on judgment day? Remember, three tracts “planted” every day equals a thousand a year. And everybody who reads one makes a choice —with eternal consequences.

“...by their fruits ye shall know them.”
 (Matthew 7:20)

Judy Frankamp discovered that being raised in a “religious” home was not enough. She takes us into specific issues that have bothered many Christians, but they could not quite get a handle on them.

Not to worry, Frankamp knows how to put them into words.

With an engaging, “homey style”, the author explains how she learned that her favorite “Christian” talk show host was really pushing the New Age. She puts into plain language what is wrong with Harry Potter. She describes her confrontation with liberal pastors who didn’t care if their Bible had removed or changed the words of God. They just didn’t want to make waves.

On several occasions, she writes from the point of view of Satan and his devils, scheming how to derail Christians. There are some things, like the Harry Potter craze, that we just “know” aren’t right, but can’t explain them.

After you read Frankamp’s story, you will know how.

Only 13 Percent of Next Generation are Bible Believers

Recent surveys of the next generation are shocking some church leaders. Evangelical authors Thom and Jess Rainer, in their book, Millennials, polled a cross section of the 18 to 30-year-olds and found only 13 percent of the 75 million alive today, were Bible believers. That fits the “narrow way” concept of Matt 7 and a smaller percentage than that “turned the world upside down” in the book of Acts. But it takes a sold-out, no-looking-back commitment that is rare in today’s churches.

Lance Ford, in his new book, Revangelical, quotes a statistic that only 3 percent of non-Christian millennials hold a favorable view of evangelicals. He blames the perceived image of evangelicals in the culture of being “harsh, judgmental, compassionless and homophobic.”

Ford places much of the blame on Christians who have played politics instead of putting faith first in their lives and reflecting the love and grace of Christ. While this is true, we have also failed to counter the intense campaign by the humanist schools and godless government to shove Bible believers into the margins of life.

Russell Moore, head of the Southern Baptist Ethics & Religious Liberty Commission, made a point in his acceptance speech for the position. He observed that the American culture is now in a post-Christian position and that Bible believers should shift to a “prophetic” stance. Instead of assuming that America is basically “Christian,” we need a more realistic view of the lost condition of most people and do more to stand and speak God’s Truth (in love) to their ignorance, indifference or even hostility. Jesus wept over Israel’s confusion because the shepherds, instead of nurturing the sheep, were abusing them with heavy bondage to mind-numbing rituals and regulations.

A review of the messages of the Old Testament prophets to a wayward nation of Israel finds a striking parallel between this “post Christian” America and paganized Israel. Remember: without righteousness, America is doomed. Do not think that a political move can free us from the need for a revival. Righteousness is what exalts a nation, not any political position. Legalizing sins such as abortion, adultery, and sodomy brings God’s reproach, lifted only by repentance. (See Prov. 14:34.)

Soul winners, we must redouble our efforts while we still can. The freedom to witness is increasingly in jeopardy because we have followed ungodly leaders in schools, entertainment, as well as government.

America’s slide into paganism is not in establishing polluted Greek and Hebrew texts as the foundational translation documents for not only English bibles, but all languages, both common and those used by organizations such as Wycliffe.

His book also describes how the Jesuits were central in this effort. Their goal is to get the Apocrypha included in your Bible to support more of their pagan doctrines. We are very late in this process. The present Jesuit pope is even now pushing hard for unity toward the end-times one-world religion.

SBC Conference Addresses Ministry to ‘Gays’

So, how should we be thinking about witnessing to homosexuals? One pastor told of a young “gay” man brought to him during an outreach. “I can’t help it, I was born this way,” he said. The pastor replied: “Yes, I was, too. We are all born as sinners. I lived out my sin in drugs and alcohol before God saved me from my sin. God can do the same for your sin.” Using that line of reasoning, he led the young man to trust Jesus.

The Southern Baptist Convention’s Commission on Ethics and Religious Liberty recently hosted a conference on The Gospel, Homosexuality, and the Future of Marriage to bring together leaders and authors who have contributed to the dialog over homosexuality. Featured were special speakers, panel discussions, and opportunities of one-on-one dialog, even with same-sex advocates. Prominent were several who had exited the homosexual life style with the help of the Holy Spirit.

Central to the discussion was God’s view of the subject as presented in the Bible. Perspectives that emerged included the fact that the subject in the Bible is bigger than just homosexuality; it has to include God’s purpose for sex in general. Ex-homosexual speakers repeatedly described how their journey involved a careful reading of the Bible and a realization that nowhere did God appear to bless same-sex unions, even supposedly “monogamous” ones. It was obvious that His plan intended sex only in the context of a husband-and-wife relationship.

Another perspective of the ex-gays was that they discovered that they did not need to see their sexuality as their identity. They came to see themselves as a child of God first, and their sexuality only as part of God’s overall creation of them as a person. Then the question became: how to please God with His gift of sexuality? The obvious answer from scripture did not include same-sex relationships.

The pastor’s story of identifying with the sinner provides a humble approach to witnessing to a homosexual. Their sin is no different than anyone else who disregards or rebels against God’s best plan. In the limited to any election period, but began many decades ago when godless humanists were allowed into our schools, colleges and even some churches. God told Israel in 2 Chronicles 7:14 that if His people humbled themselves, prayed and turned from their wicked ways, He would heal their land. For too long, God’s people have slept through the paganizing of America. Now, it is up to us to obey this verse and hope that He will bring the promised healing.

Most revivals in history have been preceded by an intensive saturation with nonsense gospel tracts. Only the gospel will help people see that their salvation is not in more government, but in trust in their Creator and making life work His way. The Old Testament prophets were not afraid to deliver God’s message and certainly won no popularity contests. The government at that time, usually the king, mounted powerful opposition to their message.

If Russell is right, we need to exert the same boldness in speaking the truth in love to this and the coming generation. But, don’t be surprised if the king (government) is not happy and you end up in a prison ministry.

Righteousness —Key to All Freedoms

No freedom is so precious as the freedom of speech. If Satan can shut that down, then all other freedoms are squelched. Much of the world's political regimes have no tolerance for such an awesome freedom. But the so-called Western World has stood firm for several centuries protecting this freedom.

However, new forces are beginning to erode the wall. Examples include the arrest last year of Peter LaBarbera and Bill Whatcott at the University of Regina in Canada. Their offence was simply holding up signs and passing out flyers presenting God's opinion about abortion and homosexuality. They were arrested in April and charged with "mischief." Free speech became the central issue in the subsequent trials which have yet to be concluded. When university officials asked them to leave, they refused on free speech grounds.

Whatcott is a Canadian citizen and has stood firm in his bold public stand against abortion and sodomy.

LaBarbera is a U.S. citizen who is president of Americans For Truth about Homosexuality (AFTAH), one of the most prominent organizations standing for traditional marriage.

In late October, LaBarbera returned to Canada to stand trial with Whatcott on the mischief charge. Upon arrival, he was detained by customs agents who thoroughly searched his phone, laptop and papers in his luggage looking for evidence of violation of Canada's "incitement to hate" laws. They confiscated a DVD produced in Russia called "Sodom" on that premise. Testimony during the trials centered around free speech questions.

Canada's constitutional guarantees for freedom of speech are not as solid as in the U.S., however, but the attacks are from two directions: homosexual rights and Muslim ship of the wafer-god and virgin goddess, works salvation, and the pope's claim that tradition and the Magisterium are equal to or supersede Scripture.

Even after all these changes, we would have to ask, which Bible? Author David W. Daniels points out in his book, Why They Changed the Bible, how all modern Bibles are increasingly slanted to support Rome's pagan dogmas. An entire section is devoted to the scheme to include the Apocrypha in the Bible. He describes how the Bible societies were, from the beginning, infiltrated with Jesuits or Vatican sympathizers. Bible societies agreed not only to change text wording to favor unbiblical Catholic teaching, but to add in the Apocrypha whenever requested. Bible translators all over the world are subject to a 1960s agreement with the Vatican to add the Apocrypha to any translation if the Catholic people groups ask for it. The history and tragic results of this are detailed in Why They Changed the Bible.

Seminaries all over the world are starting to require their students to get Bibles complete with something called the "Deuterocanonicals." This is another word for what we know as the Apocrypha. It is also a deceptive word. It makes the reader think these fairytales, superstitions and occultism are actually a "secondary canon" on a level just below scripture — "scripture lite." The truth is that they have raised men's words to the level of God's words and have lowered God's local public schools. In mid October, they put tracts into the hands of thousands of students at five local elementary schools. As a result, many more of the students are attending Saturday Bible studies and youth fellowships. Church members stepped up and helped in organizing the flow of the tracts to the schools. Tracts were also supplied to other, smaller schools, outside the local area.

"God has answered our (you and us) prayers for helpers in the ministry. They signify willingness to help us. In fact, this November, a group of young people are assigned to help us distribute tracts to 5 high schools in time for the youth camp this coming April 2015," writes Carey.

The Careys are beginning to anchor other tract ministries in neighboring towns and schools. Other missionaries and pastors are becoming interested in duplicating the Carey's methods of tract saturation outreaches to their communities and local schools.

Testimony from Missionary J.T. Strong in Kenya: "We received your generous shipment of This Was Your Life here in Mumias, Kenya. What a tremendous blessing. We pass these out when doing evangelism and even in the small African town where we live. Our children at our Children's Home love the tracts also! Last week we saw 11 people come to salvation as we evangelized in a local village and we gave all of them one of your tracts! I want to say a big thanks to Chick Publications for supporting Strong Point Ministries as we labor for souls here in Kenya."

Missionary Mike Fleuch writes from South Africa that he is training other workers in street evangelism using gospel tracts as part of the outreach. God has blessed his efforts with nearly 200 attending Sunday morning and evening services. He effectively combines tracts, street preaching and discipleship videos in growing excited Christians eager to evangelize and grow new congregations. He is starting a third year of a Bible School, training future leaders to fulfill a vision to "see Bible-believing churches planted up and down this country." He, like other missionaries, has discovered that saturating a community with gospel tracts combined with street evangelism will get the attention of enough people, "who have ears to hear," to start a young congregation. Tracts become an important part of the mix by both providing basic instruction in the gospel and making it easy for new believers to witness.

One country in turmoil is China. One missionary has succeeded in developing a network of contacts who are willing to risk their lives to get Bibles and tracts to the university students in Beijing. He writes that there are now more Christians in China than communist party members. This has the government nervous and they have declared there will be more freedom of worship, but it seems only a trick to get the underground churches to come out in the open more. When they do, but refuse to register with the government, they are shut down and leaders imprisoned. Meanwhile, God is allowing this missionary to get dozens of boxes of tracts and precious bibles into the cities where persecution is greatest. Much of the outlying areas are heavily Christian with less government pressure. Wherever he can get the tracts in, they are effective in reaching the lost and edifying the saints.

pressure. The incident above is the result of legislation granting homosexuals the same legal rights that religion, race and ethnicity enjoy. Homosexual activists are demanding that any speech that disagrees with their agenda be outlawed as "hate speech." Canada has bought this reasoning and the arrests mentioned above show the result.

Muslims, on the other hand, are using their "blasphemy" laws in their Qur'an-based Sharia legal system to convict anyone who "disrespects" Allah or Muhammad.

The world first became generally aware of this when Salmon Rushdie published a book called "The Satanic Verses." Muslim leaders took offence and put out a call to kill Rushdie. At the time that seemed laughable until Dutch filmmaker Theo van Gogh was assassinated for a movie deemed critical of Islam and Muslims rioted in Europe and the Middle East over the publishing of some cartoon characterizations of Muhammad by a Danish newspaper. Rushdie spent years in hiding and the Western World suddenly realized that the threats were no laughing matter.

The advance against this essential freedom has emerged because of the Western World's forsaking righteousness. We are destroying God's plan for solid, stable families by legalizing the sin of homosexuality and abortion, and idolizing evil musicians and corrupt entertainers.

In the past, immigrants who came for the economic opportunities were sure to be exposed to the gospel or at least to a culture that honored biblical principles. During that time, Muslims were discouraged by their leaders from coming to the U.S. because they risked exposure to a loving God who wanted them free from their bondage to Allah. Now, the church is so weak and the culture so pagan, Muslims come touting their high morality of the Sharia, vowing to conquer and clean up the corruption in the West. But where they gain control, freedom of speech dies along with most other freedoms.

Bottom line: righteousness is the only answer and saturation with no-nonsense gospel tracts has a long history of calling people back to righteousness. But they won't work unless we get them out there.

final analysis we all have the same choice: Will we do it God's way or our way? When you get right down to God's way, the Bible presumes that there is some sort of a choice involving our sexual feelings as well as our actions. We are to "set" our "affections" on things above (Colossians 3:2).

We agree that it is best not to "set our affections" on someone else's spouse when we already have one of our own. God does not make any difference when it comes to same-sex affection/attraction. The instructions in Proverbs 4:23 to "keep (guard) your heart..." also appears to apply here. If we let our hearts wander into porn on the internet, we are not exercising the "diligence" commanded here.

When King David neglected his duty to lead the army, and stayed behind to ogle Bathsheba from his roof top, he did not guard his heart and he, and many others, paid dearly for it. When a teacher suggests to a student that same sex attraction can be okay and should be cultivated, this is a huge violation of the biblical directive on handling our affections.

Witnessing to the homosexual has been a problem for many Bible believers. But the cross provides forgiveness for ALL sin. The main conclusion from the SBC conference was that we should strive to help all sinners, "gays" included, to strive for holiness first, a life committed to pleasing God, then all sins are dealt with by the Holy Spirit's ongoing work of sanctification.

Chick Publications has several tracts specifically designed to show God's solution to the "gay" lifestyle: Uninvited, Sin City, Doom Town, and Home Alone.

words to the level of man's.

The Vatican desperately needs the Apocrypha in the Bible. When they cannot distort a Bible passage to fit one of their pagan doctrines, they resort to the Apocrypha. For example, their teaching of purgatory is based on the Apocryphal books of 2 Maccabees 12:45 and Tobit 12:9. Using money to pay for sins appears in Ecclesiasticus 3:30 "Water will quench a flaming fire; and alms maketh an atonement for sins."

The Apocrypha also contains such strange advice as using smoked fish liver to dispel demons (Tobit 6), and suggest that suicide, in some cases, is manly and noble (2 Maccabees 14:37-46). Strange historical inaccuracies also appear, such as the death records of Antiochus Epiphanes, who must have died twice when you compare 2 Maccabees 2:13-16 to 9:1-29. A search of Christianbook.com turns up 46 items for sale related to the Deuterocanonicals/Apocrypha, with over two dozen Bibles that include them. Supposedly these are only for Roman Catholics, but Daniels' research discovered that the groundwork has been laid over the decades within the Bible Societies to ultimately produce a Bible with the Apocrypha and subtle watering-down to create one world Bible for one world religion. This Jesuit pope's PR campaign continues to sugarcoat the bait in the trap for Evangelicals who have already swallowed the poison of the modern (Catholic) versions.

A MESSAGE FROM JACK CHICK...

Dear Ones in Christ:

Last week as I left our building, a brother in the Lord asked me what my position was on “the Jews.” I told him we supported Israel and prayed for them daily. This caused a reaction I didn’t expect.

He went to his car and handed me a couple of books. One was On the Jews and Their Lies, supposedly written by Martin Luther. I had heard of what was said to be Luther’s position.

I can understand all this hostility. The Jews are God’s people. He has put up with them from the time of Abraham. The Bible reveals they are stiff-necked and rebellious, and they hate Jesus, because they are spiritually blind (Romans 11:25; 2 Corinthians 3:14-15).

My father hated Jews. I had a Catholic aunt who really hated them. In time that kind of talk wears you down. I didn’t know the Lord, and so I went along with it for a while.

But when I got saved and read that God will bless them that bless Israel, and curse him that curses Israel (Genesis 12:3), I came to my senses. People love to blame the Jews for crucifying Christ. Then they replace them with Christians, saying, “We are the true Israel; the Jews are not.”

Believers miss blessings because of this attitude. Don’t fall into this trap! Jesus will return and reign as the King of the Jews (Isaiah 24:23; Joel 3:1-2). Learn the truth about Nazi-type propaganda. Find out how God reacts to the nations’ treatment of the Jewish people. Read As America Has Done to Israel. It will alter your thinking.

Your brother in Christ,

STARVATION!
