

Pope Prays Before Catholic Super-Relic

Relic of St. Heilige Munditia, patron saint of single women, on display at St. Peter's Church in Munich, Germany.

Two million people are expected to visit the once-in-10-years public display this spring of the Roman Catholic super-relic, the shroud of Turin. The 14-foot-long cloth is imprinted with an image of a man who appears to have been crucified.

The relic's large following is convinced it was used to wrap the body of Jesus when He was placed in the tomb. The Vatican has not approved or disputed this view but that has not prevented its use as a major Roman Catholic object of worship.

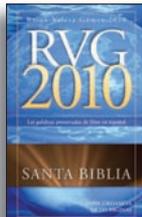

After praying before it, Pope Benedict XVI said, "This is a burial cloth that wrapped the

The continually bubbling controversy over the English language Bibles appears set to be duplicated in the Spanish world. The current discussion of the English versions revolves around the concept of the "two streams" of supporting manuscripts.

One stream is traced from the original "autographs" first to Antioch of Syria. From there, careful copies were made for distribution. As other languages were Muhammad had a 9-year-old Wife?

While many Muslim practices grate the nerves of Westerners, the committing of pre-teen girls to older men as brides seems especially revolting. More “advanced” Muslim countries claim to discourage the practice. Yet it is common even in Saudi Arabia.

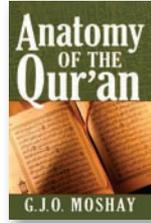

News agencies recently told of a Saudi 12-year-old who managed to obtain a divorce from her 80-year-old husband. The case sparked a campaign to raise the marriageable age to 16, but Muslim leaders point out that Muhammad consummated a “marriage” to a 9-year-old while married to several other women.

In Yemen, another 12-year-old recently bled to death after 3 days in labor trying to deliver a stillborn. She had been forced by her family to marry a 24-year-old who paid a large dowry to her parents.

Muhammad limited his followers to four wives, but obtained approval from Allah for at least 20 for himself. In addition, he was known to pick and choose among captured slave women. One of his favorite wives was Aisha, whom he chose in marriage at age six and bedded when she was nine.

Some have claimed that this was pedophilia but Mohammad Al Ghazoli, in his book, Christ, Muhammad and I, quotes the Qur’an and other Islamic literature indicating that he was simply disposed to required, translations were made by faithful believers committed to communicating the exact meaning of the originals.

Copies and remnants of these faithful translations can be traced to a line of believers across Europe during 1500 years of harassment, being driven into hiding, or burned at the stake.

This line of accurate copies of God’s Words would spark the Reformation and ultimately result in the Authorized King James Version, the “thus saith the Lord” for several centuries of English speakers.

The other stream of manuscripts flows through Alexandria, Egypt. Copying was sloppy and translations show a consistent effort to inject unbiblical theology and philosophy and diminish the deity of Jesus.

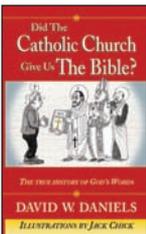

This stream flows up through the Vatican and ultimately formed the polluted Westcott and Hort Greek on which the “modern” bibles are based. (See Did the Catholic Church Give Us The Bible? by David W. Daniels.)

So, where did the line of Spanish Bible translations fit into this? The first Reina-Valera Spanish Bible became available in 1609 —based on the same faithful manuscripts that support the KJV. It served for some 300 years as the “Word of God in Spanish.”

However, it was suppressed because most of the Spanish world was under the heel of Rome. The whole history of the Reformation was a struggle between the popes and the Reformers over control of the Bible. In the English world, the Reformers won. In Spain and Latin America, the Vatican won.

As religious freedom spread, Rome’s influence was beaten back and in 1909 an updated RV was released. Unfortunately, the Spanish translators used some Alexandrian sources damaging the purity of the 1909 RV. In 1960, another “update”

‘Scouting’ New Sexual Territory

For several years, the Boy Scouts of America were much in the news over their refusal to accept open sodomites as scoutmasters. After widespread battles in the lower courts, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that forcing them to accept homosexual leaders violated their “rights to freedom of expressive association.”

The charge brought against them was violation of the “non-discrimination” laws. Here we see another instance where the homosexual steamroller has managed to link sinful behavior to legitimate discrimination. By proclaiming that they have an “orientation” to sin instead of a preference to sin, they have been able to liken themselves to racial or religious bias and claim discrimination on that basis.

This issue recently flared up again in California when a resolution was introduced in the State Assembly to honor the Boy Scouts on their 100th birthday. Homosexual lawmakers and their sympathizers quickly opposed the resolution, pointing to the Scouts’ stand against homosexuality.

At the same time, another resolution was introduced to honor the Girl Scouts and included a statement that the Girl Scouts did not discriminate on the basis of sexual orientation. Lawmakers opposed to sodomy objected to the sexual reference when it came to a vote, but it passed over their objections. The resolution to honor the Boy Scouts was not allowed a vote and died in committee instead.

Even after the U.S. Supreme Court ruling, the Boy Scouts have been harassed by eviction from churches and municipal buildings, and some of their financial support has been cut off. On the other hand, the Girl Scouts capitulated early on and accepted lesbians both as leaders and members. One source estimates that one third of their paid staff are lesbians.

Christian parents have watched with dismay as the Girl Scout training material gravitated toward radical feminism, social activism and moral relativism, away from the emphasis on God, family and love of country. In fact, in the Girl Scout “promise” that starts with “On my honor, I will try to serve God* and my country... the asterisk points to a footnote that explains: “The word ‘God’ can be interpreted in a number of ways, depending on one’s spiritual beliefs.

When reciting the Girl Scout Promise, it is okay to replace the word ‘God’ with whatever word your spiritual beliefs dictate.”

This illustrates again the cultural battle for the souls of our children. A generation ago, the culture was generally helpful to parents trying to raise descent kids. Today it is the enemy. Bible-believing parents must be continually on guard. Children grow up through a spiritual mine field. They need much more careful guidance to get into adulthood still walking with the Lord.

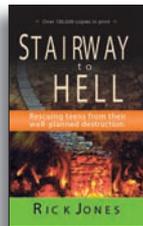

Chick Publications gets lots of testimonies from parents who grew up reading Chick tracts and books. They are grateful for the strong gospel message that has not changed over the years.

Most of the tracts use an intriguing story to drive home God’s view on everything from adultery to Satanism. Then they end with an opportunity to have the Holy Spirit change the reader’s heart.

Then as they grow up, books like How to be a Successful Teenager, and Stairway to Hell, by Rick Jones, illustrate Satan’s traps and how to avoid them. Some of his traps are outright lies being trumpeted by music, TV and movies, and even schools and universities. These include evolution, new age and other occult deceptions, and false religions. Other tracts, books and comics expose these deceptions and point clearly to God’s truth. Christian Legal Society Excluded from University Campus

The U.S. Supreme Court is pondering a case that will have serious consequences for Christian student groups in our universities. The evangelical Christian Legal Society (CLS) has been excluded from campus privileges by the Hastings College of Law of the University of California.

Hasting refuses to officially recognize any group that does not allow voting membership to all students. While CLS invites all students to attend the meetings, voting members and official leaders must sign the CLS statement of faith requiring adherence to “biblical principles of sexual morality.” This conflicted with Hastings’ anti-discrimination policies, and CLS was not allowed to meet on campus, participate in the student funding, or receive official recognition.

This case has arrived at the top federal court after contradictory rulings by several lower courts. Universities in North Carolina, Montana and Ohio have had their similar policies challenged with mixed results.

Sin Now Legalized

But these incidents illustrate the slippery slope we are on because we began to legalize sin several decades ago. The legitimate civil rights movement that rightfully fought and won equality of race, ethnicity and religion has been hijacked to protect sinful behavior.

Sodomy advocates succeeded in shifting the discussion from a “preferred” behavior to an inborn “orientation.” Now it was not their fault because either “God made them that way,” or they had reached a higher level in human evolution where freedom of sexual expression is the new norm. Now they were a “third sex” deserving special “civil rights” like being Afro-American or Chinese.

This clever justification for their sin laid the foundation for the current dispute over discrimination. They claim that if we forbid discrimination on the basis of race, then we should also for sexual “orientation.” Hastings officials have bought this clever deception because they refuse to take God’s view in the Bible that sodomy is an “abomination.”

Various “Civil Rights Acts” have been passed outlawing unequal treatment (discrimination) on the basis of color, race, religion and gender. Homosexual activists have succeeded in getting sexual “orientation” added to this list. This is how anti-discrimination rules have come to apply to a Christian group such as the CLS.

Bible-believers are in the bull’s eye for the sodomite activists. Their goal is to silence any opposition to their sin. This even includes any opposition from God. Christians in Europe and Canada are finding out where this is going. As the anti-discrimination laws have been tightened, and even sentenced to jail for preaching from the biblical passages dealing with sodomy. Others have lost their jobs, even in the U.S., for expressing God’s viewpoint.

Afro-American activists have succeeded in making it inappropriate (or even illegal) to use certain language when referring to Black people. Using the same laws, the homosexual lobby plans to eliminate any negative speech or discussion about their sin. If they succeed, Bible believers here will also be prosecuted.

This is why this U.S. Supreme Court case is so important. If the anti-discrimination laws can be used to deny CLS their constitutional rights under the First Amendment, it will set a solid precedent for others to the unbiblical group of superstitions promoted by the popes. Others include: prayers to the dead (Mary and the “saints”), wafer-god worship, infant baptism, purgatory, worship of statues, penance and confession to priests, and celibacy of priests. None of these are supported by Scripture, but are part of Catholic “tradition.”

Jesus told the Pharisees that their tradition had “...made the commandment of God of none effect.” (See Matt. 15:6 and Mark 7:9.) The pagan origins of most of these practices are detailed in The Two Babylons by Alexander Hislop, and Babylon Religion by David W. Daniels.

These books show how both biblical and secular history confirms that Babylon was the fountainhead of the various pagan systems that spread throughout the world after God confused the language at the tower of Babel. Hislop describes how, one by one, each of these idolatrous practices was incorporated into Roman Catholicism as it evolved. Satan uses each of these rituals to transfer trust from Jesus alone to this false “church” and its system of salvation by works. Merit is earned by pilgrimages to shrines built around relics such as the shroud in Turin or demonic apparitions of the Virgin Mary goddess.

Get-out-of-purgatory credits (indulgences) are obtained by bowing before statues, attending papal events or spending time “adoring” the wafer god (Eucharist).

Technically, the shroud is only a second class relic since it is not a part of Jesus’ body. First class relics have to be an actual bone, tooth or hair from a saint or martyr.

However, if one considers the shroud to be the actual burial cloth of Jesus, then the blood stains would qualify it as a first class relic.

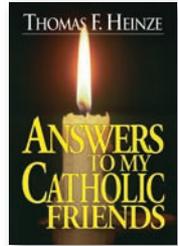

One first class relic was on display in Goa, India last year. It was the toe of “Saint” Francis Xavier, a co-founder of the Jesuit order in the 1500s and a Catholic missionary from Spain to India.

Parts of his body have been distributed as first class relics to various places in Europe and India. When his body was displayed for veneration soon after his death, the little toe of the right foot was bitten off by a Portuguese lady, Dona Isabel Carom and preserved as a personal relic. The toe, preserved over the centuries, is still on display for “veneration” in Goa.

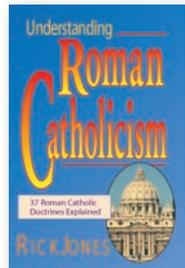

Such foolishness would be laughable if it were not that over a billion precious souls are trusting in these pagan-based “traditions” instead of looking to Jesus alone for salvation.

Millions of them are all around us in our communities and neighborhoods. They need to know the truth about the danger they are in.

T-Shirts Cause Big Problem at California School

On May 5, a group of boys were talking together on a table at the campus of Live Oak High School in Morgan Hill, California. A principal approached and demanded that they remove their bandanas and turn their T-shirts inside out so the symbols did not show. They refused and were sent to the principal's office where they were told that the American flag bandanas and Stars and Stripes T-shirts were "incendiary" and would cause fights on the campus. They continued to refuse the order and were sent home.

What was the problem? The day, May 5, (Cinco de Mayo) is when Mexicans celebrate their "Mexican Heritage Day." School authorities were concerned that their Mexican students would be offended by this bold display of U.S. patriotism. In fact, one Mexican student told a reporter, "We don't deserve to get disrespected like that."

This small incident illustrates the growing tension over the issue of immigration. Some argue that immigrants in this country without proper documents should be arrested and deported. Others say we should welcome them into our economy to do the grunt work that others don't want.

For the soul winner, these arguments are beside the point. These are souls who need the truth of the gospel. Most of them are in, or have come out of, the stultifying superstitions of Roman Catholicism. They have fled from the grinding poverty and Critical issues face the world today that the church would rather not talk about. Pastors face lawsuits and jail if they dare speak on them. But as Christians remain silent, we are losing our right to speak.

Here are 6 stories by Jack Chick, with interviews revealing why he wrote them, and the research behind them. You'll be shocked at what the enemy did while Christians were silent.

Prisoners

love Chick Tracts

Chick Publications received the following letter from a customer who began supplying tracts to a local prison. She writes:

I want to share with you what God is doing in conjunction with your tracts. This note is from a chaplain who, in September told me he did not know what he was doing at such a dry bones prison. His obstacles seemed insurmountable. In October he reported that he was seeing the hand of God move on the staff and the inmates, and could now see why God wanted him there. Now read this and look what's happening:

I was about to send you an email to say thanks for the Chick Tracts. The guys are loving them and we are running out about a week to two weeks before they come again. If we could up them by 100, that would be great. I can't begin to tell you how revival has broken out here and you have a huge part in that.

The inmates are showing up now just to see if we have more and different tracts. It's an awesome thing to see the Lord open up doors with our Chapel Clerks (they are inmates themselves) and talk to the guys about the tracts. This one ministry alone has brought over 200 inmates to the Lord since we last communicated.

They want to come into my office and talk about the things they are reading! You and your ministry are truly sent from God for a time such as this. I have no doubt that when you get to heaven, some inmate from here will walk up and say, "Do you know why I am here? It's because you sent some tracts to Chaplain B---- and he gave them to me to read and led me to the Lord!"

Thank you so much for listening to the See Prisoners... page 12 was released. By this time the Alexandrian pollution was so widespread that the 1960 version was seriously tainted.

By 1990, the 1960 RV had become deeply entrenched. Yet, Latin church leaders concerned about its purity. Humberto Gomez, a native of Mexico, veteran pastor and church planter, realized that, by using the internet, a host of collaborators, from scholarly linguists to seasoned pastors, could work together to produce a version faithful to the originals that formed the KJV, yet maintaining the linguistic beauty of the RV.

He began to personally collect information on the problems in the 1960 RV. Then he submitted his notes to other concerned church leaders including some who were credentialed linguists with fluency in several related languages.

Using their input, in 2004, a preliminary draft was circulated widely among Spanish pastors, missionaries, and other Christians with professional expertise in Bible translation. Comments poured in.

Each was carefully considered as it related to the purity of the Reformation scriptures. After years of this process, a final version was published in 2010. It is now being printed and distributed by several publishers. Since the 2004 version was made public, the same kind of debate that surrounds the English versions has increased in intensity.

The central question in both debates is the purity of the sources and integrity of the copyists and translators. Honest researchers such as David W. Daniels, have concluded that the northern stream has a purity unmatched by the other, Vatican-supported stream of manuscripts.

rampant corruption caused by this false “church.” Countries south of the U.S. border were explored and settled at the same time as the U.S. but never flourished economically because of the bondage of their religion.

In the U.S., freedom of religion and respect for the law has created the most prosperous nation the world has ever seen. Our nation not only sends more missionaries abroad than all other countries combined, but has drawn millions to our shores speaking every language under the sun.

huge U.S. market for illegal drugs, drug “cartels” have taken over whole towns along the border. Anyone, including the police or government troops, who defies them, can end up dead. Thousands of good people have fled and hundreds of businesses have closed.

What has this to do with soul winning? Simply this: drug users in this country are fueling this illegal and dangerous business. As our churches reduced their concern for soul winning, lost people not reached with gospel fall into the drug culture becoming customers for the cartels.

As you can see, there is no lack of opportunity to carry out the Great Commission. For the tens of millions here who speak Spanish, Chick Publications releases all new tracts in both Spanish and English. For the dozens of languages spoken by others who have immigrated here, Chick has at least one tract in over 100 languages.

Granted, immigration and the drug trade are huge problems but the real solution is bringing one person at a time into the Kingdom.

If the millions of Christians in this country would win just one person a month to Christ, these problems would soon dry up and America could again be the “city on a hill” shining the message of the Son of Righteousness to the rest of the planet.

Soul winners, we need to redouble our efforts and recruit others to help us.

satisfy his sexual lust wherever there was an opportunity. Some of his “marriages” were simply sexual encounters without benefit of ceremony.

Islam’s view and treatment of women today reflects the 7th century tribal customs where Islam was born. Like most pagan-based religions, Islam is highly sexualized. Women are “owned” by a husband or other dominant males in the family and allowed only limited liberties. Severe punishment is exacted for even casual contact with other men.

Yet the Muslim male has almost total freedom, sexually. Besides allowing up to four wives, some sects allow temporary contractual marriages call Mutah. The “contract” can be for as little as a few hours and provides for a “dowry” given to the woman by the man. After the contract expires, both are free to go on their way, no ceremony or divorce proceedings needed.

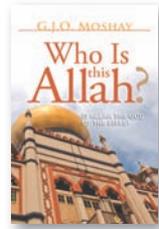

Certain moral standards are prescribed for relations with Muslim women, but no such restrictions apply to infidels. Even today, sexual conquest is part of the spoils of war wherever Muslims are fighting for control of a country or region. Unbelievers are to be killed or converted and attackers are free to rape the women at will before they are killed or enslaved.

Muhammad’s world consisted primarily of robbery and sex. All women were slaves at one level or another. Wives were the highest level with captured women serving as direct sex slaves and/or household servants. Since Muhammad’s life style forms the example for all Muslims, men obsessed with sex and conquest are the ideal disciples. And what does the man get, who achieves “martyrdom” by sacrificing his life to destroy infidels? Immediate entry into paradise where his sexual strength is unlimited and a minimum of 72 perpetual virgins are at his continual disposal.

Ghazoli’s book, and Who is this Allah? by G.J.O. Moshay, describe in detail the lifestyle of Muhammad and his teachings in the Qur’an. They will be a great help to the soul winner who wishes to be well informed on the beliefs of the Muslims he is witnessing to.

The new tract, Is Allah Like You? shows clearly the Muslim treatment of women, the contrast between the Bible and the Qur’an, and the difference between Jehovah and Allah. The tract is built around a gripping story that will hold the reader until it delivers these messages along with the gospel.

A MESSAGE FROM JACK CHICK...

Dear Ones in Christ,

Let me share a story I heard years ago about a wealthy Chinese family who owned a Mercedes Benz dealership in one of the major cities in China. World War II was almost over but in China the communists were moving to take the nation. Their leader was Mao Zedong who slaughtered millions of Chinese. The force defending China was the nationalists under General Chang Kai-shek.

The wealthy Chinese family were Christian believers with lots of money in the bank. In fact, it was a fortune. Eventually their city was hit by the communist forces and General Chang Kai-shek's army fought to save the city, but it fell. His army fled to Taiwan. China went communist. The banks were taken over and all their money was lost.

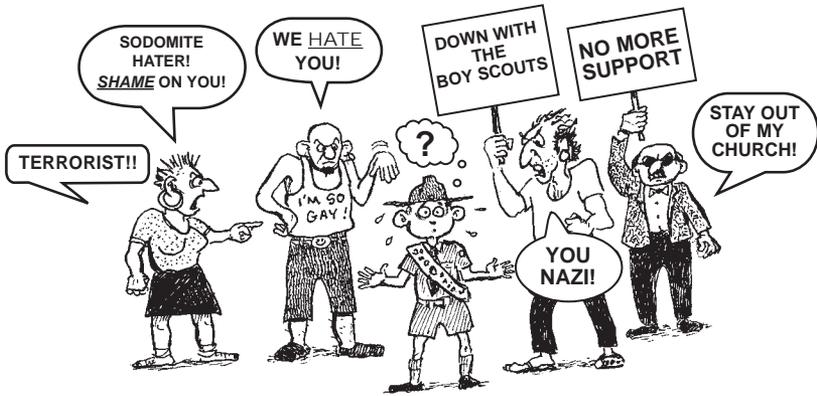

The Christian family lost their beautiful home and joined the refugees on the roads. Then they realized that their money could have been used for the Lord's work to win souls. The lost opportunity made them feel so guilty before the Lord. They were heartbroken because everything was gone.

Beloved, believe it or not, the same thing could very well happen here if there is a revolution or runaway inflation. When we leave this planet, we go empty. Think about the lost multitudes worldwide. Good gospel literature in the hands of faithful soul winners laboring throughout the world will greatly increase the harvest. We need to help them before our money takes wings and flies away like it did for that family in China.

Pray about it. The night is coming.
God bless and protect you.

Yours for the lost.
