

Supporting Israel, Standing on Scripture

By David W. Daniels

Many believers today wrestle with an important question: How should Christians think about modern Israel—especially when actions appear to conflict with biblical principles? Scripture gives us a framework that is both clear and careful. When we let God’s Word speak for itself, we learn His thoughts about Israel - both the land and the people.

God’s Stated View of Israel

To understand the issue, we must begin where God begins—with His own words about the land and the people of Israel.

In Deuteronomy 11:11–12, God singles out this land in a way He does not describe any other place on earth. Israel is described as: “A land which the LORD thy God careth for: the eyes of the LORD thy God are always upon it...”

Likewise, in Joel 3:1–2, God refers to Israel unmistakably as “my people” and “my heritage.” He also warns against those who have “parted my

Underground and Unstoppable

China’s church has grown exponentially over the past five decades, adapting to shifting restrictions while maintaining a deep commitment to the gospel. One pastor recalled, after the Cultural Revolution, young evangelists were “sent out two by two across China to spread the gospel.” They often relied on nothing more than personal witness and prayer to spark revival. These efforts birthed thousands of new followers in just a few years.

The same strategy is winning thousands to Christ today.

Chen Shaoying, a retired schoolteacher, first encountered Christ in a hospital and got saved. Returning to a province with no known Christians, she enthusiastically shared her faith with neighbors. Within two years, more than 150 new believers were meeting in five groups. In ten years, over 1,000 were baptized across multiple communities.

A ‘Tract Palace’ in the Heart of NYC

In the heart of Manhattan, just five blocks from Times Square, a unique evangelism hub is reaching the world—one language at a time. Known as the “Tract Palace,” this 1,500-square-foot space at 1026 6th Avenue is the vision of Pastor Brian Kelly of King James Bible Baptist Church.

Positioned in one of the most linguistically diverse places on earth, the Tract Palace exists for a simple purpose: to get the gospel into people’s hands in their native language. The unique space serves as both a distribution center and a staging ground for outreach. Volunteers—including Bible college students, church members, and even the homeless—help organize, distribute, and share Chick tracts with people from around the world.

Inside, the Tract Palace is designed like a “spiritual hospital,” where tracts in dozens of languages are readily available. Pastor Kelly has also built a network of multilingual partners who can assist on the spot. When language barriers arise, he’s able to connect people with native speakers over the phone to clearly communicate the gospel.

Turn the Tide for Christ

A 2026 study from Arizona Christian University’s Cultural Research Center reveals a sobering reality: just 4% of American adults hold a fully biblical worldview. Among young adults, that number plummets to 1%. Even within the church, the trend is downward—only 11% of evangelical attendees now maintain an integrated biblical worldview, down from 21% in 2020.

Researcher George Barna puts it plainly: “We are losing American society... because we have succumbed to the influence of the culture instead of the exhortations and promises of God.”

Morality Without God?

At the same time, a Pew Research survey reports that 68% of Americans believe belief in God is unnecessary for moral living. Ethics, in the modern mind, is increasingly untethered from faith.

Dr. David Closson of the Family Research Council acknowledges that nonbelievers can act morally—but drives home the point that morality itself is grounded in scripture. “The deepest and most coherent explanation for human dignity, moral obligation, and justice,” he explains, “is that humanity is created in the image of God and accountable to Him.”

The growing secular mindset presents a dual challenge and opportunity. On one hand, society increasingly questions the necessity of God for ethical living. On the other, this very openness creates space for Christians to model authentic, transformative faith that points people beyond mere cultural morality to the God who truly sustains and redeems.

The Rise of the “Nones”

Religious identity is shifting just as dramatically. Gallup’s 2025 data shows that 24% of Americans now identify as religious “nones”—people who have no religion, belief, or sacred practice to live by. Even among those who do have a religious affiliation, fewer than half describe their religion as “very important.” Service attendance is also low and continues to decline.

Young adults are the fastest-growing segment of “nones.” They choose an individualized spirituality over what they see as “organized religion.” Yet many are still searching.

land.” These passages make clear that the Jews are His people—both the saved and the unsaved. And the land His land.

God even attaches blessings and curses to the treatment of his people. In Genesis 12:3 He says: “and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.”

Israel’s Long Record of Disobedience

At the same time, Scripture is honest about Israel’s failures. The biblical record shows rebellion against God and disobedience to His words for much of their history. Yet with all that, look what God said through Balaam in Numbers 23:21: “He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, neither hath he seen perverseness in Israel...”

The prophets repeatedly rebuked Israel’s kings and leaders for wickedness, proving that divine favor did not equal divine approval of every action. However, Scripture clearly demonstrates that God views Israel in light of His covenant purposes. In other words, God’s plan for Israel is not contingent upon Israel’s obedience.

Local Believers, Global Mission

Christians from across New York City, the U.S., and even other countries regularly visit or call in to receive free foreign-language tracts. Many have a burden for specific neighborhoods or people groups, and the Tract Palace equips them accordingly. A mobile distribution station at 51st Street and Broadway, dubbed the “Jesus Bus,” also puts thousands of tracts into circulation for use throughout the city.

Outreach happens on a massive scale. Each year, teams set up 24-hour tract stations in busy subway areas like 42nd Street, while mobile units carry materials across an area that is home to more than 8 million people representing over 700 languages. Pastor Kelly encourages believers to carry “tract wallets” filled with multiple languages so they’re always ready to share with anyone they meet.

Yet, it’s often the one-on-one encounters that define the ministry. In one case, Pastor Kelly met a woman who spoke Dzongkha—a rare language—and he had just the tract! He made a special trip up five flights of stairs just to retrieve the tract for her. But it was available thanks to his vision for the Tract Palace.

Equipping Saints for Service

The Tract Palace also supports large evangelistic efforts. During an annual multi-day outreach event, 100 street preachers are equipped to distribute up to 100,000 tracts across the city. Missionaries, students, and church members alike are supplied with materials for their specific fields—sometimes even receiving large shipments to take back with them overseas.

Currently, the ministry stocks tracts in roughly 100 of the 143 languages produced by Chick Publications, with a

Reaching the Nations Without Leaving Home

Across the United States, cities and towns are becoming home to people from every corner of the globe. Languages once heard only on distant mission trips are now spoken in apartment complexes, grocery stores, schools, and workplaces. For generations, Christians have prayed, given, and gone to reach the nations. Today, in God's providence, the nations are arriving on our doorstep.

In one American city, an influx of refugees over the past two decades created a unique opportunity. Families arrived with little more than the clothes they carried, many unable to speak English, navigating an unfamiliar culture while trying to build a new life. The needs were immediate and overwhelming: transportation, jobs, food, paperwork, education.

What happened next? Christians stepped up.

They gave rides. They shared meals. They helped families figure out bus routes and job applications. They sat in living rooms where no common language was spoken and found ways to communicate. And, most importantly, they shared the gospel.

People who formerly had no knowledge of the gospel began gathering together to worship Jesus in their own languages. New leaders emerged. Churches sprang up and entire communities were transformed by the gospel—all because people cared enough to share it.

The Nations Are Coming to Your Neighborhood

At Chick, we are seeing increasing requests for gospel tracts in languages beyond English and Spanish—Burmese, Arabic, Swahili, Nepali, and many more—shipped to addresses here in the United States. Behind each order is someone who realizes that the nations are here. The person they pass on the street, work beside, or greet at a store may come from a place where the gospel is rarely heard—and they have the opportunity to give it to them.

No Passport Needed

For many Christians, missions has felt like something reserved for the few: those called to go, trained to serve, and sent across oceans. But for many of us, the assignment is much closer.

Our mission field can be the break room at work or the family that just moved in down the street. It could be the cashier with an unfamiliar accent or the parents at our child's school who speak another language.

Reaching the world for the gospel is as simple as:

- Carrying Chick tracts in a few different languages.
- Offering a smile and a tract when the opportunity arises.
- Showing kindness and walking through open doors.

It's easy to look at the spiritual state of our culture and feel discouraged. But this is a moment of opportunity. Never before have so many people from so many nations been within reach of everyday Christians.

We may never board a plane for a distant country, but now we don't have to. The nations are here. We pass them every day. So, take the next step. Carry the message, hand someone a tract, and trust God with the rest.

At least, not all the time...

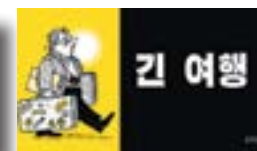

For many, English is a second language. When they come to our shores, we are responsible to give them the Gospel. But for most people, their birth language is their “language of the heart.” That is the language in which they best understand spiritual concepts.

Many soul-winners keep tracts in their car or purse in several languages, ready to delight those in their city who have a different ethnic background.

Will you be ready? They'll thank you for it!

Exposure to foreign teachers has also accelerated church growth. College students often discover Christ through classmates and English teachers. One teacher recalls sharing his faith in a student's dorm room. When he asked his student if he wanted to receive Christ, the student declined. However,

Dr. Closson frames this as a continuation of America's long cycle of faithfulness and drift: a cultural ebb and flow shaped by prosperity, societal pressures, and human hearts prone to wander (Jeremiah 17:9).

A Moment of Opportunity

The present cultural movement provides an opportunity for Bible believing Christians to:

Model Christ-Centered Living: In a world questioning the necessity of God, a life shaped by Christ stands out. Everyday life becomes a platform for witnessing.

Answer Life's Questions: People are still searching for meaning, purpose, and truth—and the gospel speaks directly to each.

Reach the Next Generation: Even though surveys demonstrate a low biblical worldview among young

Stand Firm, Shine Brightly

The state of faith in America is clear: truth is fading, morality is drifting, and commitment to God is shrinking. But this is no time to retreat. Scripture calls us to stand firm (Ephesians 6:13), speak boldly, and live visibly for Christ.

This is a moment for action. Every encounter matters. Every conversation counts. So act. Carry Chick tracts—and put them into the hands of young people wherever you go. A few seconds of courage can plant a seed that changes an eternity.

Official registered congregations now number over 66,000, serving as visible testimonies to the endurance of faith. At the same time, unregistered house churches continue quietly, persistent and unstoppable, creating a dual wave of evangelism across the nation.

Iran: The Underground Church Burns Brighter

In Iran, conversion from Islam remains punishable by imprisonment, flogging, solitary confinement, or even execution. House churches are routinely raided, pastors arrested, and believers threatened simply for gathering in Jesus' name. Yet, despite these dangers, Iran's underground church isn't withering away—it's exploding.

In 1997 there were only a few hundred known Muslim-background believers. Today, Iranian ministries estimate between one and three million Muslim-background Christians. From these numbers, it is believed that the underground church is growing as high as 20 percent annually.

Believers rely on secret gatherings, goal of eventually carrying every title in every available language. Everything is offered freely, as the Lord provides.

Looking ahead, Pastor Kelly has an even bigger vision: hosting a global missions conference at the Jacob Javits Center. The goal is to bring together missionaries from nearly every country, each representing their field with displays, tracts, and opportunities for support. With as many as 1,000 tract tables planned, the event would serve as a massive launch point for worldwide evangelism.

The Gospel in Every Language

At the heart of it all is a simple conviction: giving someone the gospel encrypted messaging apps, cross-border baptisms, and satellite television broadcasts to share the gospel. Many conversions come through dreams and visions. Muslims often see a vision of a "glowing figure in white declaring, 'I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life.'" When these dreams happen, the person either knows the figure is Jesus or they seek out a Christian to explain the dream to them.

Converts also testify that in many places, the very attempt to suppress the Bible has backfired. When authorities banned Scripture and warned people against reading it, demand for God's Word soared and many who obtained it put their faith in Christ.

Lessons for the Global Church

Just imagine what could happen if the western Church acted with the same courage and conviction! Every gospel conversation, every tract handed out for Christ is a seed planted. Together, those seeds can ignite a revival in our own communities. The time to share the gospel is now—the world is waiting, and the harvest is ready.

Child Sacrifice Still Exists

By Michael D. Daniels

Over 2,500 years ago, Moses warned Israel that the Canaanites had done, "... every abomination to the LORD, which he hateth... even their sons and their daughters they have burnt in the fire to their gods" (Deuteronomy 12:31). Moses then commanded, "There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire" (Deuteronomy 18:10).

And yet, we see over time that Israel slowly compromised with the peoples around them, incorporating elements of pagan religions, until finally, "...they caused their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire..." (2 Kings 17:17).

King Josiah tried to end it. He defiled Topheth in the Valley of the children of Hinnom so that no one could sacrifice their children to Molech there (2 Kings 23:10). He also tore down the high places. But the very next generation brought it back. His sons "did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD" and filled Jerusalem with innocent blood.

Sacrifices to the "God" of Prosperity

In the Bible, child sacrifice was the selfish and evil practice of murdering one's own child on the altar of Molech in the high place of Baal — to ensure success.

Baal was the ancient false god of Canaan: the god of rain, harvest, and prosperity. The Canaanites believed when Baal was pleased, they would receive fertile land, surplus, and stability. Molech received the price they were willing to pay for it: their own children. Prosperity was the promise, and child sacrifice to Molech was the cost (Jeremiah 32:35).

Today, child sacrifice still takes place on the altar of "prosperity." Molech may not be visible, but the act is still the same selfish and evil practice of murdering one's own unborn child. It's called abortion.

Modern Day Child Sacrifice

Paul wrote in his first letter to the Corinthians (10:20) "But I say, that the things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils, and not to God: and I would not that ye should have fellowship with devils."

The same devils behind child sacrifices in ancient times—Baal and Molech—are the same devils behind child sacrifices today.

Paul later wrote to the Ephesians (5:11-12) "...have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. For it is a shame even to speak of those things which are done of them in secret."

Our rightful horror at the killing of children can sometimes cause our hearts to grow cold toward the mothers. Though some knowingly and willingly choose abortion, many are deceived into it or feel compelled by fear, pressure, or circumstance. This is why we must speak the truth boldly while also reaching out with compassion, remembering that many are in desperate need of hope and guidance.

Imagine the emotional torment of the wives of King Ahaz —mothers who likely felt they had no choice or who forcibly had their children ripped from them in sacrifice to Molech (2 Chronicles 28). Today is no different. Society has taught mothers to forsake their God-

The Prophetic Future of Israel

Scripture plainly teaches that God still has future plans for national Israel:

Jesus will return to the Mount of Olives (Zech. 14:4; Acts 1:11-12). The nations will be gathered for judgment (Joel 3; Matt. 25; Rev. 14). Jesus will dwell on Mount Zion (Joel 3:17). The Jewish people will be regathered to their land (multiple passages in Ezekiel and Matthew 24).

These prophecies reinforce that Israel remains significant in God's redemptive timeline. If we deal with politics, we get into multiple sides and propaganda. But if we: pray for the peace of Jerusalem (Psalm 122:6-9) and do what we can to get the gospel to the Jewish people, we will always be on the right side of history.

Letter From David W. Daniels

Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

“I’ve got to show this to my brother!”

That was just one of the positive reactions I received at a local In-N-Out burger yesterday while handing out tracts to employees. I gave tracts away when I was handed the receipt, our food, and when I saw someone in between tasks. It was a blast! I kept a stack of Chick tracts in my hand, and so many people received them! One employee started reading it right when I gave it to him – and I suggested, “You might want to wait till your break.” He quickly put it in a pocket.

None of these great opportunities with young people would have been possible if my pockets weren’t stuffed full of Chick tracts.

The same is true when I spend time with my grandkids. They always ask for some “Bibles,” meaning Chick tracts. Neither one can read yet, but they love looking at them. The older one “reads” about Jesus out loud. After a few minutes, they ask for another. I am glad I have lots of different tracts with me and must make that a constant practice!

Do you want to have stories like this? Just stock up on a few titles of tracts and have them ready to hand out at a moment’s notice. You are planting seeds that will germinate. A number of people have written to me about how it wasn’t the first Chick tract that got them saved, but it was the seed that bore fruit, usually a few weeks or months later.

Planting seeds is the first step to getting a harvest. And these “gospel seeds” are powerful, powered by the words of God. God bless you as you sow! And please, tell us your stories of how God used you to share the gospel by handing out Chick tracts. You can email us at testimonies@chick.com.

In Christ Jesus, and for His service,
