Evangelicals, Pope, Modernists Make New Evangelism Rules

Ecumenism is one of the more subtle of Satan's deceptions. The recent release of a new document on evangelism rules is an example. The World Evangelical Alliance (WEA), the World Council of Churches (WCC) and the Vatican's Pontifical Council of Interreligious Dialogue (PCID) have spent five years deciding how best to share the "gospel" with other religions.

They finally came up with a few "rules" they all could live with. However, it is not the rules that are important. Understandably, given the nature of the framers, they say nothing Claiming they represent 90% of "Christianity," Cardinal Tauran, representative of Rome's prostitute church, Dr. Olav F. Tveit, head of the anti-Israel, Bible-skeptical World Council of Churches, and Dr. Geoff Tunnicliffe, of the World Evangelical Alliance, organize to fend off "proselytization" of their lost sheep.

Should We Still Give Out Tracts?

A recent Christianity Today blogger, Ruth Moon, asked the question: "Should we still give out tracts?" She began by citing recent court cases attempting to restrict street preaching and tract passing at various festivals. The judges found that such "festival evangelism" was legal, but the article questioned whether it was effective.

The writer agreed that "proselytizing in public" was practiced by both Jesus and Paul. Paul even admitted that some such preaching was with a bad motive, but nevertheless, he rejoiced that Christ was preached anyway.

The article then requests the opinions of a variety of "authorities" such as college professors, pastors, heads of "evangelism"

'This World Keeps Spinning Faster, Into a New Disaster'

I had just walked into a restaurant, and couldn't help but notice the lyrics of the song playing over the speaker system. The singer was clearly a young person, and the message of the song really made me think.

We will be placing the future of the world into the hands of a new generation whose feelings are summed up in those lyrics. They cry out for stability, peace, and to love and be loved. But they see the world spiraling out of control, throwing those desires out of reach.

It seems as there is no hope. Everything is going to blow up. Perplexed and without hope, they are just turning off. They come from dysfunctional families, they have committed their lives to their music and now it is turning against them telling them that there is no hope. This world is just one disaster after another. One of them expressed it succinctly: "Life is absurd, then you die."

We must find a way to reach this generation with the hope that we have as believers in Christ. There really is hope, but they just don't see it. We need to pray until we feel Jesus' heart as He sat on the hill overlooking Jerusalem and wept: "...how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" That compassion drove Him to speak the truth, no matter what, and then die to redeem those who would repent.

What are your feelings when you see someone on the street or in a restaurant (or in your own home) who, by hair style, clothing, piercings and jewelry, scream that they are committed to some evil influence, usually the perverse philosophy of a music or movie idol? Are they happy, relaxed, cheerful and outgoing? No! These are the

The Bible asks: "Can two walk together except they be agreed?" (Amos 3:3) When you, as an evangelical, presume to "walk together" with representatives of the Vatican and leaders of denominations that use perverted bibles to tolerate sin, what path will you be on? The document frequently uses the word, "gospel." Yet Bible believers know that the gospel of the Pope is not the gospel of the Bible. And can you walk the same path with denominations that have elected sodomite bishops?

One of the deceptions of the "ecumenical" approach is the emphasis on working together on "common concerns." This can blunt the desire to confront the false doctrine of those you are working with. If Satan can get you to work together against abortion or same-sex marriage with Roman Catholics, you are more likely to believe the lie that they are truly "brothers in Christ." You are less likely to share with them the true gospel of salvation by faith alone without their wafer god, Virgin Mary goddess or

It's So Easy!

Will the Next Generation Share the Gospel?

Religion researcher George Barna reports that the upcoming generation of “born again” teenagers have a declining interest in sharing their faith with unbelievers. “The most striking change was the fact that teenagers today seem much less inclined to have spiritual conversations about their faith in Christ with non-believers,” he says. They still participate in church activities, and claim to read their Bibles much the same as 12 years ago, but when asked specifically if they have explained their faith to an unbeliever, the percentage declined from 63 percent to 45 percent.

Barna says that youth leaders may miss this subtle change since they still show up at gatherings at much the same rate. He faults changes in the cultural attitude: “It is increasingly unpopular to make bold assertions about faith or be too aggressively evangelistic.” Social networking has had a significant influence on teen spirituality and relationships. “Talking to God may be losing out to Facebook,” says David Kinnaman, president of the Barna Group.

“In several ways, teenagers are much less inclined toward spirituality than were teens a dozen years ago,” says Barna. As stated above, they seemed to be ashamed of the gospel, reluctant to discuss it with others. Comparison of denominations also shows differences. Among the Protestants, mainline churches come in behind the more evangelical and Pentecostal groups. In fact, actual participation in church activities seems to have increased in the time period in the more fundamental churches. Yet the same pattern of decline in personal evangelism showed among this group, also.

Chick Publications has noticed a similar pattern. It is a serious concern not only for the future of our ministry, but for the church as a whole. We are attempting to bridge that gap with Facebook and Twitter pages and digital tracts that can be shared on cell phones and computer web pages. While interest in these is growing, the convenience of the printed tract is still more appreciated. For sheer ability to saturate a community with the gospel, the tracts are unequalled.

One example is Abundant Life Church in Putnamville, Indiana. Pastor Jerry Campbell had a vision for the tracts

Homosexual Approval the Result of Decades of Lies

One of the most serious “sins” in our culture is to try to change a homosexual. Presidential candidate Michelle Bachmann and her husband were recently viciously attacked in the media for operating a biblical counseling service that purported to be able to help someone who wanted out of that lifestyle.

Of course, using biblical truth to promote this process was too dangerous to tolerate. If it ever became general knowledge that there was really a way out of the sordidness, much of the steam would leak out of their drive for approval.

Bible believers must be aware of the seriousness of the homosexual attack on our freedom to share the gospel. The open hostility that we are seeing today is the culmination of decades of advanced planning. It is said that the leaders of Islam discouraged their people from coming to America 50 years ago because they feared the power of the gospel to win Muslims to Christ. That same biblical power also held the demons from Sodom in check. But we had begun to dilute that power

Along with these interviews, Hot Topics reproduces all six controversial stories.

Street Ministry 'Dream Team'

Shakes Unbelievers Awake

While others curse the darkness, Chick Publication's customers Jack and Sandy prefer to spread the light. Their newsletter describes them as "Your missionaries to the streets of America." From a distance you can see them by the scripture banners they carry.

Up close, there will be a lot of people standing (or sitting) around reading Chick tracts. And for those who care to listen, Jack will be on a personal PA system preaching the gospel. No event is too small be it a sidewalk in Flagstaff, Arizona (5 tracts taken) or a big farmer's market in Madison, Wisconsin (1500 tracts taken). Two of the hardest places were a California college (25 tracts taken) and a sodomite parade in Chicago (maybe 1 tract taken but they got the message anyway from the banners and preaching).

Their burden for America is well placed. "I am certainly interested in foreign missions," says Jack. "But, have always been mindful that when America goes, everything goes, including foreign missions. Shouldn't we be as zealous to evangelize our own backyard as we are to send someone over to a foreign country?" The Bible tells us to warn the wicked and to warn the righteous (Ezekiel 3:18-21). We found that street preaching and Chick tracts are the quickest ways to reach the most people for the least money."

Jack says, "We use only Chick tracts. I've never seen anything like it. Often we hand someone a tract and they ask for a different one because they have already seen that one. Even unbelievers will tell us they have a collection at home. At a Catholic conference in California, 2000 organizations and a sociologist. Most tended to disagree with Paul that such methods did much good. There were comments like: "These measures have little positive effect, but considerable potential for irritating their targets," and "I doubt that flyers containing a brief gospel message have much impact." One even compared tracts to Balaam's donkey: "God spoke to Balaam through a donkey. So I reckon God can also use a tract."

The overriding theme was "relationship evangelism." One contributor drew a contrast between a "decision-making" event, and a "disciple-making" process. To "contrast" these seems unfortunate. Everyone becomes a disciple by first making a "decision." Isn't it really all one "process?"

Another contributor said: "Seldom does anybody do the classic 'somebody's a non-Christian who has never heard the gospel and you give them a tract, they read it, and at the end get saved.' That's very rare." Granted, but Paul described the "process" as one person planting the seed, another watering it and, in the end, "God gives the increase."

Tract ministries can cite many testimonies of a tract planting a seed that was watered later, maybe by another tract or brief witness by another soul winner and God eventually "giving the increase," sometimes years later. A number of tracts may pass through a person's hands preparing the heart for the success of a later "relationship." In this age of "seeker friendly" churches, it appears that "personal evangelism" has also become so. Contributors to the blog used phrases like "find out their felt needs," "meet them where they are," "done with respect to the person and culture," even "passing out a lot of smiles."

They deplored methods that: "irritated," were an "impersonal witness," created "acrimony," or were not "God's favorite medium." Yet everywhere in scripture (and also in history), where the gospel was presented, there were two reactions: a few received it with gladness and the rest were either indifferent or "irritated," some to the point of murder. Jesus and many of the apostles and prophets eventually were killed by people "irritated" by their message. If a pleasant response from all hearers is required, then we need a different gospel.

Chick tracts have been effective for 50 years because of a no-nonsense gospel. It is the same gospel that brings conviction and salvation to the humble and "acrimony" to the proud. A good tract is not an "impersonal witness." It will force the reader to decide: choose the gift of eternal life that is offered, or stand condemned at judgment day unable to plead that they "never heard" the good news.

Those who doubt the effectiveness of Chick tracts should key "testimonies" into the search box on www.chick.com. But don't do it until you are prepared to spend awhile rejoicing with the angels over the rich harvest you will find there.

Dream Team...

worst is at Muslim and homosexual events. When someone creates a commotion, it attracts more people and they just try to get out more tracts.

They carefully research the local laws and know their rights when on public or private property. This does not prevent occasional damage to their PA equipment, stolen eyeglasses or even a knock on the head. Police often seem indifferent to protecting them. Today, the accepted way of "witnessing" is "relationship" evangelism. Ministry leaders poo-poo tracts and "street preaching" as either useless or counterproductive, driving people away from the gospel.

They argue that a single piece of paper handed to a stranger is not going to do much in the whole process of conversion and discipleship. Street ministers like Jack and Sandy do not feel called to carry out the whole process, only part of it. The Apostle Paul described the process in 1 Corinthians 3. One plants the seed, another waters it and the Holy Spirit produces the increase.

Street preaching and tract saturation can quickly cause a large group of people to think about their relationship with their Creator.

For some, it will be momentary, but others may be ready to respond to the gospel. Christ's parable of the sower in Matthew 13 speaks exactly to this situation. Some gospel seed will be quickly choked, but others will bear fruit 100 fold.

Will you help?

Yes, we're outnumbered... - but there is an answer.

Christ gave all Christians an agenda: to witness to “every creature.” But He warned us — we would be grossly outnumbered.

Many churches now teach “relationship evangelism”... take time to be their friend, play golf with them, and someday you will earn the right to present the gospel.

But while you’re reaching that one, should you ignore the other 100,000 people a day who are dropping into hell without even hearing the gospel?

Jack Chick says “no.” Fifty years ago, he was burdened to share Christ with the masses. As a cartoonist, he knew that cartoons grabbed people’s attention. He also knew that few could resist a good story. Soon, he combined the two and created Chick tracts.

Today, 775 million Chick tracts have been printed. And our files bulge with salvation testimonies as a result.

If you want to practice “relationship evangelism” with your neighbor, great. But don’t ignore Christ’s agenda to reach the masses. You may be outnumbered, but with Chick tracts you can greatly multiply the number of people you reach with the gospel... and greatly increase God’s harvest.

eternal life through the “church.” If you are working at “feeding the hungry” alongside members of “mainline denominations,” you are not likely to risk damaging their friendship by pointing out to them that they have the wrong Bible that calls sodomites “temple prostitutes,” thus clearing the way for them to accept homosexuals as pastors and bishops.

Geoff Tunnicliffe, secretary general of the WEA said that the document is a “collaboration between three Christian families of faith that jointly represent about 90 percent of all the Christians on the planet.” How can this be true when each “family” has a different kind of faith? Truly biblical faith is trust alone in the finished work of Christ on the cross for forgiveness of sin.

Roman Catholic “faith” is in their traditions. They re-sacrifice their “Christ” in every Mass, pray to the Virgin Mary goddess for God’s favor, pay for their own sins in purgatory, and deny the clear assurance of heaven that the Bible teaches.

The WCC family “faith” is in a god of love who couldn’t possibly consign someone to hell. They trust a butchered Bible that supports homosexual priests and bishops, and trims away at the divinity of Jesus.

Much of their Bible is considered fables and legends, not really binding on modern man enlightened by “scientific discoveries” such as evolution and by superior, modern philosophies.

We are forced to conclude that this is but another plot by Satan to direct the attention away from his favorite prostitute church and also turn a blind eye to those who “name the name of Christ,” but rationalize away His commandments.

The Bible says that we are to reprove the works of darkness, not get in bed with them. If we are “unequally yoked with unbelievers,” we are less likely to warn them of hell and challenge them to full commitment to our mighty Lord.

and shared it with a retired computer technician, Dale Detro. They put up small Free-Take-One displays in a couple of dozen local stores and restocked them every week. In the last five years, they have seeded over half a million tracts into their community. Now, whenever someone is handed a tract in the community, they often say: “Oh, I’ve seen that one, do you have a different one?”

Since our time here is short, we must make every effort to pass on the essentials to the next generation. As the cultural pressure increases against witnessing and soul winning, we need to help the next generation understand the importance of the great commission and how to best carry it out.

The teens (and older) that you know may be deceived by the modern teaching that tracts don’t work; that witnessing is best done by building relationships. It is true that this method works very well, but you can only reach a few per year.

If, in a busy day, you take a few seconds to hand someone a tract, you will bring him to a decision, either reject its message or try to learn more. If the Holy Spirit is drawing that person, He will water that seed some way and eventually God will get the increase. It only takes a few minutes to seed a hundred tracts into a crowd. Some will “fall by the wayside,” but some will “fall on good ground” and bring forth a harvest for the kingdom.

qualities of the joy of the Lord. Does your heart hurt as you watch them parade their lostness?

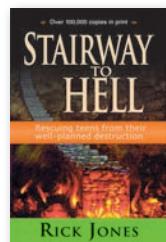

Yet, not all who are deceived by the many modern satanic deceptions display it in such bizarre fashion. Many appear almost normal, except for that look of bewildered fear often masked by brag-gadocio or playing the comic. They bury their worry in sports, adult toys, obsessed by physical fitness or compulsive sexual thrill seeking.

Jesus put us here to WIN the lost, not be repulsed by their sin. God is their judge, not us. They must sense our compassion, not our disdain. Modern technology has provided marvelous ways of communicating the gospel. When we only have 5 seconds, we can at least give them a no-nonsense gospel tract that the Holy Spirit can use to break a ray of hope into their lives. I've never had a young person say anything but "thank you" when giving them a Chick tract. They like the cartoons, and need the message of hope. In that brief moment, the despair in that song has given me a new commitment to making sure that I give a no-nonsense gospel tract to the young people I see everywhere . . . restaurants, stores . . . they're everywhere!

The song writer is right: disasters will follow disasters. The Bible predicts that. But we are not left without hope. When it only takes five seconds to share that hope with a young person who is convinced that there is no hope, can we ignore our Master's commandment?

Persecution Rising in U.K. and Headed Our Way

Persecution and harassment of Bible believers in Great Britain have become so intense that a Christian legal group has appealed to the European Court for help. Doctors are disciplined for sharing Christ with patients. Electricians and nurses are forbidden to wear a cross or display one in their work trucks.

The source of the problem is so-called "Equality Laws" enacted over the past few years to eliminate "discrimination." Two groups, Muslims and homosexuals, are capitalizing on these laws to try to eliminate any resistance to their agendas. Each has a goal of eliminating biblical influence in the culture.

Muslims are mandated by their "holy book," the Qur'an, to eliminate all religions other than Islam. They believe that this is their opportune time to take over the western world and kill or enslave everyone who will not convert to Islam.

Satan has succeeded, through militant homosexuals, in convincing government leaders that the homosexual lifestyle is a "civil right," due the same protections as race and gender.

As you can see, neither of these will tolerate anything like a live-and-let-live environment. All opposition must be eliminated. And, since atheistic humanism has taken control of western culture, there is no force adequate to counter the claims of either group.

Typically, someone is offended by the display of a cross or by a Christian attempting to help by counseling from the Bible. A case in point is the Christian doctor who told a discouraged, 24-year-old patient that the doctor's faith in Jesus had helped him and could help the patient. The patient expressed no offense but when his mother asked what the doctor advised, he told her, "He said I needed Jesus." She filed a complaint with the General Medical Council who threatened the doctor's job.

He has decided to fight the complaint to stand against this assault on religious freedom.

Europe is a few years ahead of the U.S. in development of an anti-Christian environment. Many dead and empty churches have been converted into Mosques. Universities are hotbeds of socialism and humanism, denying the Bible and its God. Britain's state religion, the Anglican church, has partnered with Roman Catholicism and welcomed humanist philosophies and homosexual clergy.

Into that seedbed, Islam, sexual perversion, and myriads of other sins have flourished. Unfortunately, America is headed down that same road. Laws in key states such as California and Massachusetts now mandate pro-homosexual indoctrination of public school children. Parents who object are denied prior notice and told they cannot exempt their children from the unbiblical curricula and teaching sessions.

Christian students are frequently denied freedom to display Biblical items and use Christian themes in their school work. Yet classes on Islam are freely allowed and students have been suspended for refusing to participate in Muslim prayers and rituals.

In the final analysis, the West is defenseless against either of these invaders. Atheistic humanism can only embrace homosexuals as a further evolutionary several decades earlier as our Bible colleges, that were established to train Bible-believing pastors, opened the door to the “liberal arts,” adding unbiblical philosophies such as evolution, humanism, and Freudian psychology. These became the seedbed for skepticism of the Bible and the Devil’s foot was inside the door.

It is ironic that Harvard University was established as a Bible College to train pastors and now has produced men who are at the center of the sodomite juggernaut. In a book titled “The Overhauling of Straight America,” Marshall K. Kirk and Hunter Madsen (pen name, Erastes Pill) detail the grand strategy for cramming homosexuality down our throats. Both are Harvard educated and they co-authored a book detailing how they would overcome the objections of the American people to same-sex relationships.

Kirk and Madsen first called for “a massive media campaign to change the image of homosexuals.” It was to talk “loudly and often” about “gayness.” Hollywood cooperated by casting homosexuals in favorable roles in popular movies and TV.

Another plan was to cast homosexuals as victims. The news media became good at that, running and rerunning stories of abuse and attacks on homosexuals. These were so few that they had to distort the truth in cases like Mathew Shepard who was killed in a robbery, but happened to be homosexual. He is still the poster boy victim of so-called “homophobia.”

Public images were to be only sympathetic figures of nice young people, old people, and attractive women. Pedophiles, promiscuous males, and members of the North American Man-Boy Love Association (NAMBLA) are kept off screen.

Another example is the campaign for same-sex marriage. It is always a nice, ordinary couple who have been in a “committed relationship” for a long time, wanting to establish a “stable family.” No mention is made of the fact that the majority of such unions are “open marriages” where each partner is free to seek sexual adventure in the broader scene. Their book details many other subterfuges that we recognize from watching their very successful campaign.

Recent polls show that the majority of Americans have bought their lies. Bible believers are almost alone in opposing this abomination. Thus we are the last focus of their venom. Hate speech laws are near approval that could shut our voices.

We need to speak up while there is still time. Chick Publications has a couple of tracts, Sin City and Uninvited, that show God’s view of this abomination. Most folks are just riding along with their campaign. If we can saturate our communities with God’s truth, it might put a stop to this drive of evil.

Persecution...

refinement of the human animal. It is even more ridiculous to expect the radical Muslim to give up hope of paradise and accept the modern humanist idea that when you’re dead, you’re dead.

Only the gospel has the power to defuse the devilish lust driving the homosexual or offer the Muslim a loving God to replace his capricious, vindictive Allah. Some Bible-believers are praying for a sweeping revival that will behead these two Goliaths. This could very well happen and would be a wonderful restoration of godliness. But meanwhile, many lost and bewildered souls are all around us.

Shouldn’t we at least take the time to hand them a no-nonsense gospel tract pointing them to the only way to personal peace with their Creator? Who knows: if enough of them got saved, the revival we are praying for might just happen.

A MESSAGE FROM JACK CHICK...

Dear ones in Christ,

It's difficult at times to face an issue when you know that feelings will be upset or frightened. But it has to be done. Like a surgeon or physician having to tell a patient that he only has a few more days to live, it also causes concern about death, funeral arrangements, relatives, a lawyer, and a will.

On the other side, we have a pastor with his flock with a different issue to face. It also concerns death, but in this case it involves eternity. If the pastor is a liberal, he'll avoid touching on hell. Many pastors like that don't even believe hell is real. But if he does believe in a literal hell, he may avoid it so he won't offend his congregation and lose church members. But he will face a very serious problem at the judgment seat of Christ. He will have to give an account for not doing his job.

But that also applies to the rest of us. People laugh at hell, but it is a horror that faces every man and woman who is unsaved. Our job is to warn them, and beloved believe me, we do warn them in our little tracts. Each tract and drawing is bathed in prayer that it will impact the reader.

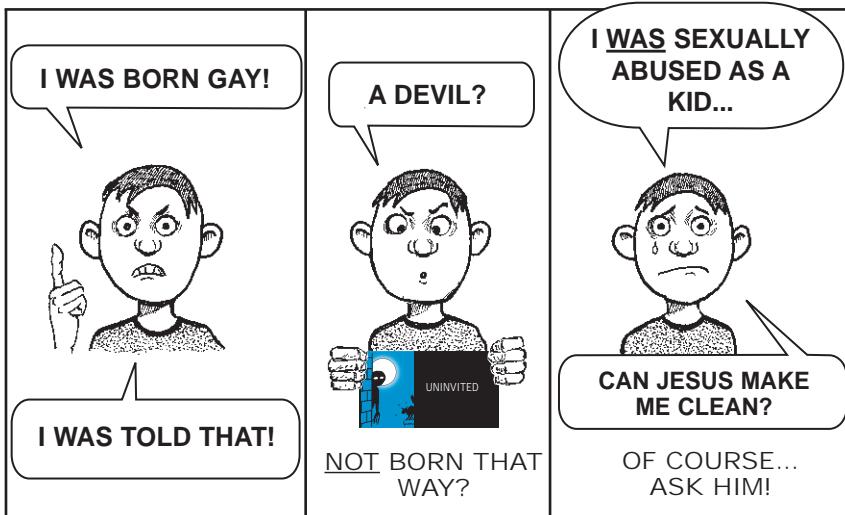

Some church leaders shoot down the passing of tracts, but the Lord doesn't. He is the One that raised up Chick Publications. He is the One that creates the stories. He is the One that has made it possible for us to put out almost 800,000,000 tracts world wide.

Our job is to continue warning unsaved souls about hell and it is your job to put out at least three tracts a day. That's a thousand a year. We must! The night is fast coming when no man can work. (See John 9:4.)

May God bless you as you stay faithful to the great commission. Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature (Mark 16:15).

Your brother in Christ,
